DETAILED ACTION

1. This Office Action is responsive to Amendment filed on 10/06/2003.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Hikida et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,549,195).

Regarding claims 1 and 2, referring to Fig. 1, Hikida teaches a touch screen display comprising a pressure tolerant display including a plurality of interference modulation elements (i.e., material LC); and a touch screen (20) directly coupled to the display (10) (col. 4, lines 29-65).

Regarding claim 3, Hikida further teaches the touch screen is a pressure sensitive touch screen (col. 5, lines 24-33).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2674

5. Claims 5 and 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hikida et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,549,195) in view of Nitta (U.S. Patent No. 6,275,220).

Regarding claim 5, Hikida teaches the display comprises: a substrate having a first surface (11) and second surface (12); an array of the interference modulation elements fabricated on the first surface (11) of the glass substrate; a seal (13) coupled to the first surface (11) of the glass surface (see Figure and col. 4, lines 29-65).

Hikida differs from claim in that he does not specifically teach a packaging component coupled to the seal. However, referring to Fig. 2, Nitta teaches a packaging component (22) coupled to the seal (12) (col. 2, lines 24-53). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the packaging component as taught by Nitta in the system of Hikida in order to simplify the display, reduced weight and bulk of the device.

Regarding claim 7, Hikida further teaches the touch screen (20) is directly coupled to the second surface (12) of the display (10) (see Figure and col. 4, lines 29-65).

Regarding claim 8, Hikida further teaches a front surface element (121) coupled to the second surface (12) of the substrate (col. 4, lines 29-65 of Hikida).

Regarding claim 8, Hikida further teaches the touch screen (20) is directly coupled to the front surface element (121) (col. 4, lines 29-65 of Hikida).

6. Claim 6 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicants' arguments filed 10/06/2003, have been fully considered but they are not persuasive because as follows:

In response to applicants' argument filed "Hikida fails to teach or suggest a pressure-tolerant display including a plurality of interference modulation elements". However, Hikida teaches a touch liquid crystal display device with the liquid crystal material. The liquid crystal material presents in the LCD operate on the principle of interference as it is directly touched. Therefore, it is believed that the limitations of claims 1-3, 5, and 7-9 are still met by Hikida and Nitta and the rejection is still maintained.

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
